SUSPECTED BERRY POISONING

TWO CHILDREN DEAD

THE mystery of the death of two children and serious illness of a third was investigated yesterday at Rathdrum by the Coroner, Dr. P. J. Hamilton, at an inquest on Mary Kinsella (aged 7) and her brother, John (5½), children of Mr. and Mrs. John Kinsella, Ballygannon, Rathdrum. The inquest was adjourned pending a report from an analyst.

Dr. Mary O'Byrne, Acting Medical Officer, who had attended the children, said that she believed they had eaten laurel cherries—the berries of the laurel tree.

John Kinsella, the father of the children, said that after dinner on Sunday the two children and their brother, Kevin, left home to go to Avondale, and returned at 5.30 p.m. with their mouths stained blue, as if they had been eating berries. Kevin, who had several of these berries in his pocket, became drowsy and went to bed. He was ill next day, but the other two appeared to be all right. During Monday night the other two became ill, and early in the morning he found that Mary was in a dying condition. A doctor was summoned and the children were taken to the County Home.

Dr. Mary O'Brien said that when she arrived at the hospital Mary was dead. Both boys on admission complained of headaches and pains in their stomachs. John gradually relapsed into unconsciousness and died on Tuesday morning. Kevin was alternately drowsy and delirious. He had an increasing temperature and rigidity and was in a very serious condition. She was inclined to believe that the deaths were due to an irritant poisoning, but, pending further investigation, she was keeping an open mind on the subject.

James Jordan and Kate Stone, who were also at Avondale on Sunday, said that they and other children had eaten similar berries to those eaten by the Kinsella children without any ill effects. It was also stated that Kevin had been ill on the way to Ayondale.

DEAD CONSTABLES

FAMILIES TO GET £3,675

At Strabane Quarter Sessions yesterday, Judge McGonigle awarded the widow (Mrs. Eileen Laird, Newtown place, Strabane) and four children of Constable James Laird, R.U.C., Strabane, shot at Clady, £1,925. In the claim of the widow (Mrs. Elizabeth Hamilton, Main street, Sion Mills) and child of Special Constable Samuel Hamilton, shot on the same occasion, £1,750 was awarded.

SOLOMONS AREA

U.S. BASE SHELLED

A Reuter Washington message says that the U.S. Navy Department announced last night that Japanese warships shelled the American airfield and base on Guadalcanal Island, and that troop transports had landed Japanese reinforcements on the northern coast of the island.

NEW LIQUOR BILL

BONA FIDE SCANDAL TO BE TACKLED

SOUTHERN CITIES FEAR HARDSHIPS

THE Intoxicating Liquors Bill, which will prohibit bona fide drinking during week-days, and extend the normal trading hours on Sunday by an hour, was introduced in the Dail yesterday by the Minister for Justice, Mr. Gerald Boland.

Referring to the state of affairs in rural areas after city closing hours as "pandemonium," he warned the House that, if the bill did not prevent people travelling into the country in search of drink, some other way would be found to deal with the rowdies.

While accepting the principles which forced the Minister to introduce the bill, deputies criticised him for showing the legitimate traders no mercy, and for inflicting hardship upon men attending fairs and lorry drivers working late and early.

TRAVELLING FOR DRINK

As every deputy knew, said Mr. Boland, crowds of undesirable people travelled out, after drinking in licensed houses in the city until closing time on Sunday night, to areas where they were bona fide travellers, and continued drinking there until the small hours of the morning. There had been constant complaints from the Garda Commissioners and others about the scandal of this abuse. The purpose of the bill would be to abolish the system on week-days.

There was no bona fide exemption between eight and midnight on Sundays, but publichouses, especially in places where dances were held, opened one minute after midnight, and unless the Guards could prove that persons came there solely for the purpose of drinking they could do nothing. If the purpose of the bill—to prevent, or make it not worth while for people to travel into the country in search of drink—failed, some other way would be found to deal with the matter.

SOUTHERN CITIES

It had been put to him that this bill would have very serious effects in Cork, Limerick and Waterford, where a "mixed" business was carried on, and that traders in those places would suffer great hardship. He was prepared to consider the representations which had been made by members of the licensed trade there—that the Sunday hours there should be 1 to 3 and 5 to 7, as against the hours provided for in the bill—1 to 2 and 4 to 7. He thought it was only right that District Justices should have discretion in regard to the imposition of endorsement. Section 6 dealt with the position of restaurants who had only wine licences and who wished to obtain full restaurant licences. As the law stood they could not get them. A couple of firms were concerned with this section. Another firm was concerned with another provision of the bill, which enabled application now to be made to have an on-licence changed to an off-licence.

Another case covered by the bill was that of Clery's restaurant, which had a licence up to 1933, but which allowed it to lapse. When application was made to the court for a licence for this premises the judge decided he had not jurisdiction to grant it. The bill gave the licensing authority power to grant this licence if it so desired.

PRIVILEGE ABUSED

Dr. T. F. O'HIGGINS (F.G., Leix-Offaly) said he believed the bill would have the support of practically every deputy. There were certain licensed houses within rifle shot of Dublin who had abused their licences and served drink to people who had been three-quarters drunk before they left the city itself, and who allowed these people to drink on their premises until the early hours of the morning.

These facts were known to the Department of Justice and to the Guards, and he would be more impressed with the fact that the existing machinery had broken down if the Minister had cited cases where the police authorities had objected to the renewal of these people's licences. Now legitimate traders throughout the country, who had been carrying on their business in a meticulous manner, were to be hit and have the value of their houses written down to nothing because of this other class.

SUNDAY OPENING

Mr. NORTON (Labour) said that the measure was going to perpetuate such anomalies as that a man in Dublin or Waterford City was free to go into a public-house during some hours on a Sunday, but a man in Galway or Nass was forbidden to do so. He suggested that all public-houses should be open for a reasonable period on Sundays. That would stop the migration of people and abuse of the bona fide law.

Mr. LENIHAN (F.G., Cork, N.) said that the bona fide system should be continued from closing time up to 12 midnight, with a space then until 6 a.m., when the system would again come into force. Such an arrangement would be giving fair treatment to all those people, such as lorry-drivers and others, whose business took them from place to place.

Dr. J. HANNIGAN (Labour, Sth. Dublin) said that it was to the everlasting disgrace of the Minister's Department that certain houses in the County Dublin were allowed to carry on in the fashion they had been carrying on for several years. It was gratifying to know that these houses represented only a small percentage of the houses in County Dublin. The effect of one of the sections of the bill would be to enhance the premises of a certain individual by £50,000, who was a generous supporter of the Fianna Fail Party and had been for many years. This was known as the "Guiney clause."

ST. PATRICK'S DAY

Mr. FitzGERALD - KENNEY (F.G., Mayo, Sth.) thought that the Minister could deal with the abuses without doing away with the bona fide traffic. The Minister had made no case at all against the bona fide traffic.

Mr. J. HICKEY (Labour, Cork) said that his great objection to the bill was that hotels and restaurants could supply drink on St. Patrick's Day. If they closed the public-houses they should also close the hotels for drinking purposes.

Mr. P. McGILLIGAN (F.G., Dublin) said that one matter that needed explanation was the granting of licensing authority to a Minister of State, as the bill did in relation to the licensing of aerodromes. If the bona-fide clause were left to a free vote of the House then, on the basis of the views expressed there, that clause had not a chance of getting through that House.

He would like the Minister to tell them what percentage of the public-houses were affected by abuses of the bona-fide traffic; how many cases were taken to the courts? and how many licences were endorsed?

The debate was adjourned.

MORE TILLAGE

Farmers are not likely to get very much artificial manure during the coming year, and should do everything possible to provide manure themselves. The Minister for Agriculture, Dr. J. RYAN, gave this warning in the Dail yesterday, when replying to a motion by Mr. P. Belton and Mr. P. Cogan calling on the Government to tell the House what was the present position with regard to food supplies for man and beast, and what steps were being taken to prevent the possibility of famine and the recurrence of the underproduction of 1941.

There was, the Minister said, great hope of getting binder twine manufactured at home. At present, he announced, they had more feeding stuffs—250,000 tons—than in 1917 for all Ireland. To-day there were 500,000 acres more under wheat, oats and barley, and the yield might be maintained for another few years. But, he prophesied, they would have to ask the farmer to grow more.

FIVE SOLDIERS HURT

Five soldiers were injured, one seriously, when a tender in which they were travelling last night overturned, after its steering gear had jammed, at Glenville, County Cork. Private Malone received serious head injuries, and he and Private Clifford were detained in a Cork hospital. The other men received minor injuries.

Called to the Inner Bar:—Mr. G. D. Murnaghan, Mr. J. L. Esmonde, T.D., and Mr. H. Vaughan Wilson.

STALINGRAD DEFENDERS COUNTER-ATTACK

NORTH-WEST of Stalingrad the Russian relief army has captured new strategic positions, and in the city itself the defenders are preparing a counter-offensive, and yesterday threw the Germans out of a number of buildings.

In the Caucasus the German advance has been held, and the defence of the approaches to Tuapse has been strengthened.

Five German transports have been sunk in the Baltic Sea.

STOCKHOLM, Wednesday.—Reuter's Correspondent here says that the decisive stage at Stalingrad has started. The Germans inside the town are expected soon to begin their last assault, but the Russians are forestalling them by heavy and frequent counter-attacks, meanwhile preparing a large-scale counter-offensive of their own. "This will probably be launched when it becomes quite obvious that the Germans cannot capture the town. A significant German admission, made in a propaganda-company report to-day, is that bitter guerrilla fighting is still raging even in those parts of the town believed to have been entirely cleaned up. It is clear that considerable Russian forces are still hiding among the ruins and offering irregular, though bitter, resistance. Another German front report again stresses the great difficulties caused by Russian artillery on the east bank of the Volga. 'Soviet artillery lies like an inaccessible barrier to the German advance in the northern parts of the city,' the report says. 'Of late this problem has become even more acute. Obviously, Timoshenko has succeeded in the last few hours in bringing up large quantities of heavy artillery.'

RUSSIAN PROGRESS

"Marshal Timoshenko is known to be concentrating new reserves in the South, while his forces in the North have made some progress along the Don bank. Somewhere higher along the Don, between Kletskaya and Voronezh, Russian troops are reported to have made an unexpected crossing over the Don, and established bridgeheads on the western bank.

"The only disquieting sector of the whole front is near Tuapse. Fighting is raging along a mountain pass leading to the town, and the Germans claim to have already reached the sea, but add: 'Although the number of miles to Tuapse is not great, we fully expect these miles to be very difficult. It is impossible to say when the port will be ours. Russian defences are terrific.'"

SOVIET REPORT

Last night's Soviet communiqué from Moscow, quoted by Reuter, stated that yesterday, in the area of Stalingrad, Soviet troops repulsed Axis infantry and tank attacks. Soviet gunners wiped out about two companies of German infantry and destroyed five guns, several machine-gun nests, and twelve lorries of ammunition. North-west of Stalingrad fighting of local importance continued. "The enemy, about two infantry companies strong, attacked the positions defended by one Guard unit, but the attack was repulsed. In one sector of the Mozdok area German infantry, supported by tanks, attacked our positions. Some German tanks succeeded in driving a wedge into the Soviet defence lines. Fighting for the destruction of this group of enemy tanks is taking place. South-east of Novorossisk Soviet gunners destroyed two German military trains laden with ammunition at a railway station occupied by the enemy."

NO INCREASE IN TEA RATION

Mr. Lemass told Alderman A. Byrne, in the Dail yesterday, that, despite the fact that the British Government had purchased 700,000,000 pounds of tea, there was no immediate prospect of an increase in the ration in this country.

Permits were now being issued freely for the purchase of cement, he said, but he could not guarantee that the future cement supplies would continue to be satisfactory.

PROTESTANT SCHOOLS

LUNCH HOUR UNCHANGED

Protestant schools will be allowed to retain their present short midday intervals, in spite of the recent request from the Minister for Education that all schools should close between the hours of 12 and 2 o'clock. When this request was received, Dr. J. Bennett, headmaster of the High School, Dublin, and Secretary of the Protestant Schools' Organisation, wrote to the Minister on behalf of the parents of children at Protestant schools, pointing out that, as most of these schools serve a large area, the children will find it more convenient to take their lunch at school, where it can be provided at a cost not much greater than that of the fare home. He has just received a reply from the Minister agreeing that the period allowed for luncheon should rest with the discretion of the managers of the separate schools.

At the same time, Dr. Bennett also requested that the Minister's order, which states that no school may open before 9.30 a.m., should be modified. He explained that parents had been complaining that owing to the gas restrictions the children finished their meals about 8 o'clock, and had nothing to do between that and 9.30, the hour when the schools begin. If, as he suggested, schools were allowed to open instead at 9 o'clock, and if the masters and parents were agreeable, it would also mean that the 'buses would be less crowded. The Minister, however, has replied that he could not consider this proposal, and that for the present no school may open earlier than 9.30 a.m.

Transport restrictions would make earlier opening impracticable, says the Minister.

NEW LICENSING BILL

ABSTAINERS' PROTEST

Disappointment at the "many shortcomings and retrograde proposals" of the new Licensing Bill was recorded at a meeting in Dublin yesterday of the Father Mathew Union, representing about a thousand total abstaining priests.

The meeting adopted a resolution which stated that the bill proposed to disregard religious and national feelings by according drinking facilities on St. Patrick's Day; it gave an additional hour for drinking on Sundays in the exempted cities, although the Gaelic Athletic Association had not asked for an extension; it proposed to abolish compulsory endorsement of licences, and accorded the defending publican the right of appeal, while denying that right to the prosecuting authority; it ignored altogether the scandalous abuses of excessive drinking in clubs, and, instead of reducing the admittedly excessive number of publichouses, it provided additional beer and spirit licences for restaurants. In the interests of national sobriety, decency and self-respect, and for the protection of youth from grave moral danger, they appealed to all members of the National Legislature to remedy these defects in the bill in its passage through the Oireachtas.

NO REST FOR MALTA

Last night's British communiqué from Malta, quoted by Reuter, said that the fifth Axis raid of the day was in progress. In the first two the island's Spitfires destroyed four bombers and three fighters and damaged others. The figures of the other raids were not available. The Axis attacked in the same locality every time, but little or no damage was caused. Each raid was intercepted before it reached the coast, and any bombers that got through were chased.

FAMILY ALLOWANCES

URGENT CASE OF POOR

The report of the Inter-Departmental Committee set up by the Government to consider the desirability of a scheme of family allowances in the 26 counties will be available to the Cabinet this week.

This was announced in the Senate yesterday, after a debate on a motion asking for the launching of such a scheme to relieve existing distress.

Coming so soon after the statement of the Minister for Finance that the standard of living had been considerably improved during the last 30 years, assertions by Senators Tunney and Cummins that children were going hungry sounded almost paradoxical. The majority of the Senators who spoke on the subject supported the urgency of relief for the suffering poor, and urged that no political issue should be made out of it.

Mr. O'Kelly gave the House the obvious answer—that the report was in the offing, and that the Government would give it careful consideration, but that it was a complicated matter, which could not be decided upon in a very short time—and the motion was withdrawn, the House rising till November 11th.

BIG LINERS SUNK—Berlin

A special announcement issued yesterday from Herr Hitler's Headquarters stated:—"Off Capetown the British passenger liner Orcades, of 23,456 tons, has been sunk, and between Freetown and Capetown the Canadian liner Duchess of Atholl, of 20,119 tons, has been sunk. The ships were employed as troop transports to Egypt and the Middle East. In the same waters two more ships, totalling 17,425 tons, were sunk. Although constant heavy autumn storms strongly impeded operations, other German U-boats, in attacks lasting several days on fully-laden and strongly protected convoys in the North Atlantic on their way to Britain, sank fourteen ships, totalling 82,000 tons, and damaged two more ships. In the last four days the enemy has lost 18 ships, totalling 143,000 tons, between Newfoundland and the Cape of Good Hope."—(Reuter.)

JAPANESE CRUISER SUNK

WASHINGTON, Wednesday.—United States submarines in the Western Pacific have sunk a Japanese heavy cruiser and four other vessels, probably sunk another, and damaged two more, says a Navy Department announcement tonight. These successes were detailed as:—Sunk: One heavy cruiser, one medium cargo ship, one small cargo ship, one small tanker, one small trawler. Damaged: One large tanker, one medium cargo ship. Probably sunk: One medium tanker.—(Reuter.)

BETTING, FILMS AND SWEEPSTAKES

PROBLEMS DISCUSSED BY CHURCHMEN

CONDEMNING sweepstakes, films, and the Government for "legalising betting," members of the Dublin, Glendalough and Kildare Diocesan Synods yesterday appealed for a moral welfare worker for the dioceses when the report of the Church of Ireland Temperance and Social Welfare Society was debated.

Moving the adoption of the report and a motion urging the appointment of a moral welfare worker, the Rev. N. H. F. Waring said that such a worker could organise centres where young people could meet, and could be their recognised friend and comforter when they were in trouble.

Appealing for remand houses, where young people awaiting trial could be kept away from criminals, he cited the case of a young girl who had attempted to take her life, and who was remanded in custody at Mountjoy Prison. She was put in prison dress and found herself in close contact, and even sleeping with, convicted criminals. She spent the whole day in the court, and was given only a dry piece of bread and a cup of cocoa without milk. Young people should be given a fair start in life after a moral failure, and he asked the Synod to consider itself responsible for them.

The unmarried mother was one of their foremost moral problems, and the Church as such was doing absolutely nothing about it. It was being left to kindly-disposed and self-sacrificing individuals. They were doing nothing about it as a diocese, yet the primary responsibility was on their shoulders.

BETTING EVIL

Canon E. H. F. Campbell said that gambling was a problem greater even than that of temperance. As Chaplain to Mountjoy Prison he knew that at least 75 per cent. of Church of Ireland men imprisoned were there because of gambling. The Government had legalised betting, and that had the very bad effect of interesting hundreds of people in betting who otherwise would never have touched it at all. It was a pity that their sister Church did not seem to take upon itself any responsibility in this matter. It would help very much if they would come out with them on that point.

Mr. R. J. Love complained that, while the Government had controlled wages, they had failed to control prices generally, with a result that traders were fancy free to charge what they liked. The whole position was alarming, and demanded drastic action by the Government.

The Rev. R. Bird alleged that one of the causes of gambling to-day was that they were being familiarised with the methods of the racecourse by means of the sweepstakes. Ireland had been demoralised by the propaganda which had come night after night from the Irish Broadcasting Station, and he was glad that that had been stopped.

BAD HOUSING

The Rev. R. E. Weir, condemning the housing conditions which prevailed in the cities, said that in this Christian land of theirs they catered for immorality by allowing people to live in such conditions. They might excuse themselves by saying that the vast majority of these did not belong to their Church, but they were their fellow-citizens. Quoting from the Irish Times, he pointed out that, with a Church population of 54,000, there was no adequate provision made for boys and girls. Did the Synod realise that these young people were in their midst and that comparatively nothing was being done on their behalf?

These matters, he urged, were pressing matters. Last Christmas he walked through the streets of Dublin and was amazed and horrified to find so many drunken people. There were also dance halls, and he was told by those who knew that these dance halls were veritable hells for their boys and girls. Were they going to do anything about it?

The Rev. W. E. Kenny attributed much of the very insidious form of propaganda amongst their young people to unsuitable films.

Canon Drury replied that the censorship of films in this country was very strict, and he did not think the films shown were quite as deleterious as Mr. Kenny thought.

The report and the Rev. N. H. F. Waring's motion were adopted.

WENT TO BRITAIN

A total of 50,821 citizens of Eire—38,415 of them men—got travel permits to work in Great Britain or Northern Ireland during the year ended September last, said Mr. Sean Lemass in the Dail last night. This figure included seasonal workers.

The figure for the previous year was 27,401, 25,536 being men.

SENATE APPROVES BANK BILL

MINISTER'S TRIBUTE

WITH the Minister for Finance, Mr. S. T. O'Kelly, claiming that they had passed a milestone in the legislative, financial, and economic history of the State, the Senate last night, with the time allotted to it for discussion of the measure running dangerously low, approved the Central Bank Bill, and sent it back to the Dail.

Contending that the important new powers in the bill, prudently used, could materially help to improve the social and economic conditions in the country, and that, while there still were grave social evils in the 26 counties, the standard of living of the people had been raised very considerably in the last thirty years, and that no longer were there tatterdemalion people walking in the streets and lanes of the city, the Minister was quite emphatic that no comprehensive solution of social problems could be expected purely from monetary manipulation, and that monetary action alone could not, and had not, in any country, offset the other forces which operated on the economic system.

Replying to assertions that agriculture needed a hundred millions for development, he declared that agriculture was not starved for credit to-day, and he revealed that he had asked the Commission on Agriculture to investigate the necessity for credit. If the Commission satisfied him that a reasonable sum was required, and he regarded five million as reasonable, and was urgently needed, it would be got.

WORD FOR OLD AGE

One of the features of the debate in its earlier stages was a vigorous defence of old age by Sir John Keane, who, in reply to a suggestion by Senator Baxter, that the new bank might be given the services of a number of men who had come to the end of their service on the Boards of commercial banks, said that bank directors were drawn from the boards of other businesses, and were intimately in touch with the trade and commerce of the country. What was required on the board of the Central Bank was maturity of judgment. "Perhaps," he said, "it is because I am getting on in years myself that I am inclined to make apology for people who have passed the meridian, but I think there is a considerable amount of exaggeration about the disadvantages of age. The analogy of a judge is not inappropriate. I think it is the general experience that you do not necessarily require young men on the Bench, but men of experience. There is nothing to prevent an old man from reading and studying."

The final word on the banks was said by the Minister, and it was a complimentary reference to the splendid manner in which they safeguarded the people's money, for which, he said, he could not give them too much praise.

BIG RAID ON KIEL

NINE BOMBERS MISSING

The British Air Ministry states that on Tuesday night, in good weather, a strong force of bombers made a concentrated attack on the port and naval base of Kiel. Nine bombers are missing.

"Kiel was subjected to a heavier bombardment than it has ever had before," said the Air Ministry News Service, describing the raid. "For an hour the defences were battered, until the searchlights were veering in every direction, and the gunfire became ineffective. Crews found Kiel lighted up like daylight by the huge fires and the multitude of flares in the air. The fires were so bright that only the bursts of the biggest bombs could be distinguished among them.

"Beaufighters of Coastal Command, on patrol over the Bay of Biscay on Tuesday, destroyed two Junkers 88s and a flying boat without loss to themselves.

"Army Co-operation Command aircraft attacked a goods train and other targets in Northern France without loss," says the British Air Ministry.

DAYLIGHT SWEEP

"In the course of offensive patrols yesterday afternoon Spitfires attacked a goods train and a railway workshop near Launion, and damaged two enemy minesweepers off the French coast. Beaufighters of Coastal Command attacked two enemy E-boats off the Dutch coast. None of our aircraft is missing," said last night's British Air communiqué.

TRUTH TO SAVE TAXES

WHILE different interpretations of the statement by Dr. Barton, Archbishop of Dublin, on Tuesday, that the nation's taxes could be reduced by fifty per cent. if its citizens could be induced to tell the truth, were advanced to an Irish Times reporter by public men yesterday, there was complete agreement on the heavy cost imposed on the State by untruthfulness.

"If the Archbishop related the fifty per cent. reduction to administrative overheads rather than to total yield of tax, central or local, I should be inclined to agree with his statement," said Mr. D. J. O'Donovan, Commissioner for County Dublin.

"A large proportion of public officials' work, and consequently of national and local taxation, is applied to the prevention of abuses, and in overcoming the reluctance of many citizens to comply with the essential community requirements."

In the happy condition of affairs visualised by the Archbishop, taxation and rate collection costs would dwindle to a small fraction of their present totals, he said; administration of social services would become straightforward and vastly cheaper by the elimination of elaborate machinery for the prevention of fraud; and many officials who live by the public service would have to win a livelihood from some other, perhaps more productive, activity. I think it would be wrong, however to suggest that present conditions are brought about by any large section of the public. A very small element of fraud can necessitate a general measure of precautions. It would be equally wrong to suggest that the problem is confined to the sphere of the public services.

A LEGACY

The view that the Archbishop probably had in mind the extent of the evasion of taxation was expressed by Senator J. G. Douglas, who observed that, apart from professional people and employés of limited liability companies, whose income was within the knowledge of the authorities, the masses of the people paid income tax on their own returns, and the Government had largely to trust them to tell the truth. "I think the evasion of taxation may be a legacy from the old régime," he said, "in that it then was considered a proper thing to pay as little as possible to a Government outside the country, and anybow small amounts did not matter so much in such a large administrative area. At the moment we have the position where, if someone saw me put my hand in another person's pocket, they promptly would report it, but they themselves would think nothing of doing the very same thing in effect by smuggling goods or evading payment of tax, thus injuring the State and taking money out of other people's pockets."

CORK SALMON SALES

MERCHANT FINED £304

Fines totalling £304 10s. were imposed at Cork District Court yesterday on three summonses by the Cork Board of Fishery Conservators against Joseph Clayton Love, fish merchant, of Cork and Cove, who, it was alleged, had unlawfully in his possession last January, during the River Lee close season, 151 salmon, exported the salmon without a licence, and failed to keep a register at his place of business. On the latter two summonses the fines were nominal. On the other summons, under the 1924 Act, the District Justice imposed a fine of £304, and adjourned a fourth and similar summons under the 1939 Act, remarking, "It may be possible I am wrong in making an order under the 1924 Act for unlawful possession during the close season. If the order I have made stands, I propose striking out the fourth summons, or making a nominal order on it. If, on the other hand, my order to-day is wrong, I hold myself open to make an order under the 1939 Act." Fifteen guineas costs were allowed.

& FLATULENCE AFTER MEALS

The reason why you get that burning pain and distressing wind after meals is because your stomach is always too acid. It sours everything you eat. Food simply can't digest and your stomach is tortured in the attempt.

Why endure this mealtime misery when 'Milk of Magnesia' Tablets will stop it this very day? They relieve acidity and sweeten a sour stomach at once. The stomach starts digesting, your food right away and finishes its work with perfect ease. You feel nothing—no heartburn, no flatulence, not a twinge of your old stomach pain.

If you suffer from acute attacks of gastric pain 'Milk of Magnesia' Tablets will stop them in five minutes. Try them to-day!

Next flat boxes for the pocket, 6d. and 1/-. Also family sizes, 2/- and 3/6 everywhere.

'Milk of Magnesia' is the trade mark of Phillips' preparation of Magnesia.

CLEAN BRIGHT FRAGRANT

DOCTOR'S ADVICE TO WOMEN

HOW TO KEEP WELL, SLIM AND BEAUTIFUL.

If a woman wants to keep well, to retain her figure and complexion, she needs something different from an ordinary man's "salts." Women need something specially designed for women.

For one thing she needs something which "gently and without any drastic action will clear away the poisonous wastes which clog the blood-stream, make complexions muddy and cause unwanted fat.

Then women are very liable to Cystitis, Backache and the Disturbed Nights caused by Kidney and Bladder weakness. Ordinary salts won't help these much.

That's why women ought to take Juno-Junipah. Juno-Junipah is the one salts designed specially for women. It's a combination of the finest mineral salts with pure oil of juniper to cleanse and revitalise the Kidneys and Bladder.

Take just a pinch of Juno-Junipah in warm water before breakfast and you'll be astounded how quickly you feel the benefit. Those pains of Rheumatism and Lumbago and Sciatica will disappear, your continual Backache will go and you'll enjoy long nights of undisturbed rest. And soon your complexion will grow clearer and fresher, while if you're troubled with unwanted flesh, you'll be delighted at the way you get back the figure you had.

Better Health and Looks or NO PAY!

So certain is Juno-Junipah to make any woman feel and look better, that here is an offer! Get a 2/- packet of Juno-Junipah from any chemist to-day. Take it as directed, and if you aren't more than satisfied with what it has done he will refund your money without question. Obtainable from all chemists.

"Pro." and Amateur Boxing Opposition

By P. D. MacWeeney.

TO any follower of sport, it must be completely incomprehensible to see two big boxing programmes taking place in Dublin on the same night, and no boxing at all the rest of the week. It certainly appears as if professional boxing is being run in opposition to the amateur tournaments, and, in the end, that will only do harm to both "codes"; as an Ulster delegate to the recent amateur convention pointed out, the amateurs and professionals in the North work side by side, and it should be possible to do the same here.

In point of fact the situation in Belfast is not exactly parallel with that in Dublin, where collaboration is not at all easy, but it does seem as if some scheme might be worked out by which the tournaments could be run on alternative weeks at the Stadium and Rotunda Cinema, thus avoiding absurd congestion on the same night.

The root of the difficulty is in the suitability of Friday night for boxing tournaments. The amateur associations and clubs have experimented with Monday and Saturday nights at the Stadium, but neither has been really successful. The average boxing follower has decided that Friday is the night that suits him best, and I doubt if anything would make him change his mind. Exception might be made for an occasional professional tournament, but when it is the intention, as at present, to run professional shows each week, alternate week Friday remains the key night.

Last week there was an excellent programme at the Stadium, which even exceeded expectations (at the attendance was poor: on the other hand, with Jimmy Ingle as a drawing card the much smaller Rotunda was mobbed, and with elsewhere apparently inadequate, many ticket-holders were unable to get in. This is obviously a thoroughly unsatisfactory state of affairs to which there should be some solution.

Before the start of the amateur season there was a feeling in some quarters that a tournament every second week was likely to have more appeal to the public than one every week, a viewpoint with which I heartily agreed, as we really have not got sufficient top class amateurs in Dublin to maintain a high standard every seven days. However, applications for dates from the various clubs poured in, and finally when the fixture list was drawn up it was found that only about four weeks were left vacant. I cannot help thinking that the Leinster Dublin Board made a mistake in allowing all these fixtures: at the risk of earning the criticism of some of the clubs they should have rigidly adhered to a fortnightly programme. How this can be done we would probably have had the professional promoters falling into line and the public could have watched the different types of boxing each week.

As matters stand now, I think it unlikely that professional tournaments will be a draw every week for much the same reason as the amateur shows—a lack of material. The public want new faces, and while there are plenty of professionals in the North of Ireland the number in Dublin is limited, and a Dublin interest is probably essential for success. Ingle's debut as a professional has been decided upon as the point of interest. This coming Friday the professionals have the field to themselves, as it is a blank date at the Stadium, and the non-amateurs will provide the big attraction.

In the top-liner, Kid Derg (Belfast), a contender for the Irish Bantamweight title, who recently defeated Billy Donnelly, takes on Jimmy Smith, of Dundee, amateur feather-weight champion in 1940. A beautiful boxer, with a punch which he unleashed all too seldom, Smith has done well since he joined the paid ranks, and has an unbeaten record. A man of Derg's class will give him the best possible test.

While Eddie Chandler never won an amateur title, he was one of the most colourful boxers who used to appear regularly at the Stadium. A really clever fist hitter, the right reason for his failure to reach the very top flight was difficult to see, for he was quick and well-balanced on his feet. He had not the coolness of Ingle or Dowdall under punishment, and lacked judgment when in an attacking position, but I was one of those who always expected him to accomplish more than he actually did. With his knock-out punch, he might do very well as a professional. His opponent will be Billy Smith, of Belfast, a lad with a good record. The Northern pair, Joe Summers and Ginger Walsh will meet Micky Quinn and Tommy Cullen, respectively, and Biffy Phelan (Dublin) has been matched with Eddie McCormack (Dublin).

RACING GOSSIP FROM HEADQUARTERS

From Our Curragh Correspondent.

Stop It might have anything in the shape of a future next season, but the planning must be done for him by his owner and trainer, Messrs. McGrath and Collins, as he has no engagements. Major McCalmont's Carlist, beaten by Stop It on Saturday, has on the other hand, his future already planned. Though his performances this season are not on the same spectacular scale as that of Mr. McGrath's gelding, he has shown ability above the average, and as one of the best-looking youngsters of this interesting season, there must be real hopes of his developing into a classic winner of 1943.

By Blanding—Slap and Tickle, Slop It was bred at the Brownstown Stud, as was the two-year-old filly, Fabulous, who is likely to be one of the classic favourites for next year. The yearling half-brother by Fair Trial to Stop It is a far better-looking youngster, and should display his worth in the many races in which he has been entered.

The Brownstown Handicap at the Curragh on Saturday promises a thrilling contest. The Conyngham Lodge stable, with a trio of possible representatives—Radiologist, Eucalyptus, and Hydora—will be hard to beat; and others engaged are Mr. Myerscough's beautiful and consistent filly, Milady Rose; Mr. Hubert Hartigan's Poulike and Cookstown; Mr. O'Brien's Artcraeler; the penalised Ellen's Pet (over her pet distance, too); Mr. McKenna's Ina an Mala; and Lady Lambart's The Abbot of Hainault.

In the number of counsels gratuitously given to the new Commission on Irish Racing, I have seen none to the effect that owners, trainers, and jockeys "carpeted" should be afforded special help to plead their cause. I do not think that there can have been many judicial lapses in the past; but there must be always the danger of such, be the tribunal ever so fair. Some punishments in the past have, in the opinion of people will pay altogether too much for the offence. Something like that, I assume. Something like that has been suggested to me by a few of those who have had the rather unnerving experience of being "up before the Stewards."

ENGLISH HORSES MAY RUN IN IRELAND

The Stewards of the Irish National Hunt Steeplechase Committee are considering the question of permitting a certain number of horses at present in English stables to run in Ireland during the winter. National Hunt racing in England during the season 1942-43 has been banned by the Government.

NO FREE LIST AT CURRAGH

Members of the Turf Club and of the I.N.H.S. Committee and badge-holders will not be admitted free of charge to the substituted meeting, to be held at the Curragh on Saturday. The free list has been suspended for this meeting. Owners and trainers who have horses engaged at the meeting, qualified riders riding at the meeting and jockeys will be entitled to free admission.

SPRINGER TRIALS AT CLONTARF

The first Nursery Trials of the English Springer Spaniel Club of Ireland were held on Saturday in the grounds of Clontarf Castle, by kind permission of Mr. Oulton. The president of the club, Mr. W. Kidd Davis, was judge. The entry of six dogs was quite good, as entries were confined to club members, who are spread all over the country. Four springers passed the first test, and their owners were awarded elementary cards.

Awards went to Miss Blitz of Solway, Mrs. F. R. Cahill Power (judge's remarks: Nice worker, very obedient, will make a good retriever with further training, steady); Dannlees Immigrant, Miss E. Fahy (fairly good control, steady to shot, and will retrieve); Modern Art, J. O. Andrews (highly biddable, under good control and very steady). Lady Gay of Palricksdwell, J. J. Andrews (little nervous to shot, but steady, observant, intelligent, and will do well in time with some work).

It is planned to have these nursery trials at frequent intervals (every six weeks) right through the year to encourage springer owners to bring out the working qualities of their dogs and to bring breeders and shooters together.

LADY CAPTAIN'S DINNER AT WOODBROOK

Eighty-eight ladies joined their captain (Mrs. Wm. McDonnell) at dinner on Saturday last. After the toast of "The King" was honoured, Miss Ryan, in proposing the toast of "Our Captain," referred to Mrs. McConnell's kindness and tact, and to the very successful way she had safely steered her ship through a rather difficult year. Mrs. McConnell, replying, thanked Miss Ryan for her kind words, and expressed her indebtedness to the committee and members, especially to the hon. secretary, Mrs. A. W. Hughes, and the hon. handicapping secretary, Mrs. O'Connor. Mrs. Hughes suitably replied. Miss Ryan, Miss Foley, and Miss O'Rourke (Elm Park) contributed to a musical programme, which was followed by a dance, in which Mr. P. Black (capt.) and members joined.

GATE IN LEINSTER CUP FINAL

JAMES'S GATE 4 SHAMROCK R. 2

Shamrock Rovers are out of the Leinster Senior Cup, in the final for which St. James's Gate will meet the winners of the Distillery (holders) and Drumcondra match, to be played next Wednesday at Shelbourne Park. The redeeming features of yesterday's game at Dalymount Park were the brilliant manner in which most of the goals were scored and Murtagh's grand save from a penalty kick by Cosd early in the second half, when Rovers seemed to be gaining the upper hand. The Gate's goalkeeper thus prevented Rovers from drawing level at 3-3. Had they done so the match might have taken a turn in their favour, indeed they had the better of it after changing ends but their weak finish was useless against the unyielding Gate's defence, who held the Milltown forwards throughout the first half. Possibly, with a little luck Rovers might have made it a draw, but they simply could not accept scoring chances. The scorers in the first half were Comerford (Rovers), Matthews from a penalty, Rogers and Bermingham (Gate), and Comerford (Rovers). Rogers, with a lovely half-volley, got the Gate's fourth eleven minutes after the interval.

KING'S YEARLINGS GO TO ENGLAND

One of the most valuable shipments of thoroughbreds from Ireland left North Wall a few nights ago for various training establishments in England. Among the lots despatched was a bay yearling colt by Hyperion out of Maiden Fair, bred by Mr. Ring, and consigned to Boyd-Rochfort's stables at Newmarket. Also shipped was the National Stud's brown yearling filly by Hyperion out of Trina, which has been leased to His Majesty, and will be trained by Fred Darling at Beckhampton.

HUNTING

Fingal Harriers held their annual general meeting on Tuesday in the Gresham Hotel, Dublin. The joint Field masters, Mr. Alex. Craigie and Mr. John Holy Hutchinson, were re-elected. Mr. Grant still carries the horn, and Mr. Gordon Craigie will act as Hon. Whip. Hunting days will be as usual—Tuesday and Friday. The opening meet will be held at the Fifth Milestone, Ashbourne road, on Saturday, 24th October, at 1.30 p.m. Prospects for the season are good, and game is plentiful.

Women's Hockey.—It has been decided to introduce a new competition named the Intermediate Cup, for schools with a small number or very junior pupils. Schools can enter for this competition and the Schools' Junior Cup, but not the Schools' Senior Cup. The competition will be run on the League principle.

DEPUTIES IN INQUISITIVE MOOD

46 QUESTIONS TO MINISTERS

WITH a barrage of forty-six questions, Dail deputies yesterday re-opened the battle of fuel and food, which they had allowed to lie dormant for three months while the House recessed for the summer. But their attacks brought little satisfaction. Apart from a quiet note of optimism sounded by Mr. MacEntee, Minister for Local Government and Public Health, who announced that a fuel scheme was being put into effect in the coming winter to supply fuel at cheap rates to certain necessitous classes, including old age pensioners and blind pensioners in county boroughs and urban districts in non-turf areas; and by Mr. Hugo Flinn, the Turf Controller, who told of 100 heavy lorries arriving daily in Dublin with turf to supplement what was being carried on the railways, answers were gloomy and negative.

Mr. P. J. Fogarty was told by the Minister for Supplies that the very limited transport facilities at present enjoyed by those employed in connection with the arrangements for the conduct of race meetings could not be extended to those connected with the horse-breeding and racing industry.

When Mr. Fogarty asked him if he would curtail the export of stout and porter to increase present supplies at home, he replied that until the yield of barley from the harvest had been definitely ascertained it was not possible to state the quantity of stout and porter which would be available during the coming season for export and home consumption. At present, however, normal supplies for home trade were available.

POST-WAR FARMING

According to the Minister for Agriculture, Dr. J. Ryan, there will be no practical farmers on the Committee of Inquiry into post-war agricultural problems. This Committee, he told deputies, was not a Commission of Inquiry into the agricultural industry, but an expert Committee, whose function was to study the effects which the emergency had already had on the industry; to endeavour to gauge the future effects which might be expected from the continuance of the emergency, to appraise the conditions in which farming might have to be carried on when the emergency ended and to make recommendations based on their conclusions. This involved a close study of a large number of economic factors, some of which were of world-wide import, and, for this purpose, it was necessary to have a small committee, consisting of persons who not only had a knowledge of farming, but who were also authoritative agricultural economists. The Committee would be prepared to hear the views of representatives of the various branches of the farming industry, and before effect is given to any recommendations made by the committee the farming community in general will be given ample opportunity to express their views on them.

Dr. Ryan, questioned by Mr. J. L. Esmonde and Mr. J. Keating about various aspects of the pig shortage, refused to accept the implication that the present position was the fault of the Bacon Commission. When Mr. Esmonde asked was it the Minister's policy to put pigs out of production as being competitors with human beings in the consumption of food, he replied that if they did become competitors with human beings they would discourage pigs rather than humans.

THE SPECIAL COURTS

In reply to a series of questions from Dr. J. Hannigan and Mr. P. McGilligan about the number of people convicted in the Special Criminal Court, the Special Military Court, and in the District Court, the Minister for Justice, Mr. Gerald Boland, replied at length. Between September 1st, 1939, and August 31, 1942, 426 people were sentenced to jail for offences against the State. On August 31 last 240 were still detained. Twenty-six received terms of imprisonment under the Emergency Powers Act between September 1, 1939, and August 31 last, but only two of these were still detained on August 31. In this period the Special Criminal Court tried 623 cases, and convicted in 579 of them. Out of eleven tried by the Military Court, eight were convicted, all being sentenced to death. In four of these cases the sentence was commuted to penal servitude for life. Since the emergency, 124 people had been released without completing their sentence, usually on the recommendation of the Minister for Justice.

Although 243 people were convicted for violating price-fixing Orders in respect of food for human beings, 24 for violating similar Orders in respect of feeding stuffs for animals, and 82 in respect of other articles, only seven were imprisoned.

Mr. BOLAND told Mr. W. Davin that the number of persons interned on August 31 last was 477, of whom 133 were tried before being interned. In 1939 nobody was taken from internment to stand trial.

FUEL FOR POOR

Details of a supplementary estimate of £100,000 for the Department of Local Government and Public Health, circulated to deputies yesterday, show that the money is needed for grants to local authorities towards the supply, during the winter, and under approved schemes, of fuel to necessitous families, while a token provision of £10 is made for grants under the Housing (Financial and Miscellaneous Provisions) Acts. Savings under other sub-heads bring the sum now required down to £65,000.

GRAFTON STREET PREMISES SOLD

There was a large attendance at the auction held by Messrs. Jackson Stops and McCabe at their saleroomsa in 35 Kildare street yesterday, when the premises, amounting to 2,542 leasing out of 29 Grafton street, occupied by Messrs. Newell's, Ltd., was sold for £7,000 at auction late. The property was purchased in trust by Mr. Gerald F. Robinson, 13 Blackbourne Walk, Howth. Jackson Stops and McCabe have recently sold business premises No. 47 Lower O'Connell street, with vacant possession of the shop premises.

STORE CATTLE SALES

Gaaby and Sons.—Large numbers again on offer. Following quieter demand from across Channel, though trade was firm, there was a drop in prices compared with last week. Excellent clearance was effected with poly bullocks selling considerably dearer than horned cattle. Best poly bullocks, £35 to £39 (63/6 to 70/- per cwt.); best lots of horned bullocks, £234 to £27 (57/- to 54/-); best lots of heifers, £24 10/- to £30 (56/- to 53/-); many other lots of bullocks and heifers, 58/- to 50/-, with younger classes making from £14 to £21 springers, £30 to £37.

Hamilton, Ltd.—Heavy supplies; trade was firm throughout, and a complete clearance was effected. Best polled bullocks made from £37 7/6 to £39, best horned bullocks from £35 to £38 10/-, best heifers from £27 to £30, secondary bullocks from £24 10/- to £28 10/-, do. heifers £19 10/- to £16. Young stock from £18 10/- to £22 10/-.

Messrs. Gavin Lee.—Supplies of stores were slightly smaller, but sales compared to a selection of Roscommon and Sligo Aberdeen-Angus crosses. Attendance of home and cross-Channel buyers quite as good as last week, but the demand was weaker by about 2/- per cwt. for best classes and from 3/- to 4/- per cwt. for others. Best bullocks and heifers made from 63/- to 61/- per cwt.; others 59/- to 54/-.

CALLS TO THE INNER BAR

The Chief Justice yesterday called Mr. B. Vaughan Wilson, Mr. John L. Esmonde and Mr. George D. Murnaghan to the Inner Bar.

IMPORTANCE OF SCHOOL MEALS

EDUCATION QUESTION

THE view that an inquiry into the country's primary education system, to be conducted by education experts whose experience is long enough to enable them to compare present-day children with those of, say, twenty years ago, is overdue, was expressed by the Rev. R. Watson, Organising Secretary and Diocesan Inspector to Dublin, Glendalough and Kildare Diocesan Board of Education, in his report submitted to the Synod yesterday.

Adolescent illiteracy, he says, is on the increase. Actual tests in simple mathematical calculations have given poor results, and, in his belief, it would be a valuable investigation to trace whether there is any connection between illiteracy, or semi-illiteracy, and juvenile crime. He would welcome a stimulus of religious teaching in the homes of children.

Surely, it was obvious, said the Rev. T. J. Johnston, proposing the adoption of the report, that, with a 40 per cent. increase in the cost of living, no increase in wages, and an increasing amount of unemployment, there would be emigration to places where there was plenty of work and high wages. Wholesale emigration was going on from their parishes. How were clergymen expected to deal with it?

A great deal had been said about hot school meals. He paid tribute to those university students, some not of their Church, who had helped the children in this way. Those children who had received hot meals from this source had really benefited, and he hoped that neither the Government nor the citizens of Dublin would be blind to the splendid lead in voluntary service which these young students had given to them all.

MALNUTRITION

He looked with some trepidation upon the future of children in city parishes. They could not be blind to the fact that there were a great many people suffering from dangerous fevers at the present time, and the majority of them were children, some of whom had been immunised against diphtheria, and yet were suffering from this disease. This could be attributed to the weakening of their resistance through lack of good food, and, if something was not done to improve the diet of these children, these fevers would increase to an appalling extent.

The Rev. Canon E. C. Hodges said that no body of people in the country had been asked to undertake a more impossible or more overwhelming task than the teachers in the primary schools of the Church of Ireland, and it would be most unfortunate if it went forth from the Synod that they were criticising in any way anything that they had done.

Praising the work of the University students who were providing school meals, he said that not alone had he had the privilege of sampling these meals, but had actually noticed the difference in the children and the remarkable effect of these meals. These young men were very good proof that everything was not wrong with the rising generation, as was so often suggested.

The report was adopted and the Synod came to a close.

WAGES AND PRICES

DUBLIN WOMEN'S PARADE

About 100 members of the Irish Women Workers' Union, the Irish Women Citizens' Association, the Women's Social and Progressive Organisation and the Central Housekeepers' Council marched through Dublin towards Leinster House yesterday to protest against the Wages Standstill Order and the increase in prices of various commodities.

On being diverted by police at Molesworth street, however, they returned, through St. Stephen's Green and Westland row, to their point of starting in Fleet street. The banners carried included a demand for the opening of the Corporation community kitchens to supply hot meals for school children.

A deputation, which included the Central Branch of the Labour Party, later visited the Labour Party representatives at Leinster House. Miss L. Bannett, T.C., Mrs. Tweedy and Miss Deal stated that the organisations represented had failed to secure from the Government consideration of the position of the housewife with a small income, whose economic circumstances had been greatly worsened during the emergency.

DUNDALK JURY DISAGREES

The jury disagreed at Dundalk Circuit Court yesterday, when Henry McGeown, Carlingford, was charged with the manslaughter of Mrs. Annie Brennan, Castletown, Dundalk, and causing serious bodily harm to her son, Michael, by they drove in their trap, through the reckless driving of a motor car. The case had occupied most of two days before Judge Comyn, K.C., and a jury, and the accused man was put back.

EMERGENCY ORDER FINES

In the Dublin District Court yesterday Thomas Lawless, Terenure place, Mount Prospect, Glasnevin, was fined £1 for failing to keep for sale the Milkmaid's weekly ration. District Justice Walter Molony said it was an exceptional case and defendant was not entirely to blame.

Owen Vaughan, North Circular road, Dublin, was fined £5 for selling two ounces of the weekly ration and £5 for failing to keep a record. There was an overcharge.

Mrs. Mary Nolan, Gulistan terrace, Rathmines, was fined £20 for failing to notify the Department of her two merchants of a reduction in the number of persons in her trading house.

TRADE WITH TROOPSHIPS

That some of the company's property, nor any of the property of the subsidiaries in the United Kingdom, has suffered from war action, was stated by Captain A. Ronald S. Nutting, O.B.E., M.C., chairman, who presided yesterday at the annual meeting of Edward and John Burke, Ltd.

Export Bottlers, Ltd., he added, had not been unsuccessful in replacing some of their best brands, and to-day were doing a very considerable volume of business in supplying troopships, etc.

The balance of profits, including interest, dividends, etc., totalled £33,754, compared with £30,202 last year. Owing to the result of the settlement of the complicated taxation matters of the company and its subsidiaries, the directors had thought it prudent not to resume the payment of dividends on the Preference stock.

Sir Ernest Cochrane, Bart., and Mr. R. J. Rice, retiring directors, were re-elected.

SOLDIER ACQUITTED

At the Special Criminal Court in Dublin yesterday Patrick Desmond, a member of the Defence Forces, was found not guilty on a charge of aiding and abetting Denis Kiely and Joseph Hitchcock to remove the clinometers from each of two field guns with intent to impede their working.

STOCK EXCHANGE FEATURES

BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Wednesday.

A FEATURE of Stock Markets is the investment of substantial sums in stocks which offer no income return at present. This type of business can scarcely be classed as reckless speculation. Buyers are prepared to put stocks away for future reward in the shape of capital appreciation.

South American Railway stocks are especially favoured for this purpose. The broad theory is that the Latin American countries will enjoy trade revival following the war, when goods and commodities cease more circulate freely between countries.

There are indications already of more successful working by some of the South American Railways. It was announced to-day that the Great Western of Brazil Railway that funds have been received which would permit six months' interest on the 5 p.c. and 4 p.c. Debenture stocks, bringing payments to June 30, 1940. Entre Rios Railways, Argentine concern, is having further six months' arrears on the 4 p.c. Debenture, plus 5 p.c. interest on the arrears, making the payment £2 6s. 3d., less tax.

Market values for a number of Railway Preference and Debenture stocks have risen from 2 to 3 points since the end of August. Values, however, still appear tempting for those seeking price appreciation. Great Western of Brazil 4 p.c. Debs. are now 70, and the 6 p.c. 71, while Entre Rios 4 p.c Deb. at 57½.

AMAZING PROGRESS

Evolution of the Chain Stores in Britain was a remarkable feature of pre-war finances. There is the story of Marks and Spencer, Ltd., whose shareholders are now waiting the announcement of an interim Ordinary dividend.

The present company was registered in 1926, when it took over property valued at £685,521. Properties in the report to March this year were valued at £8,963,874. During this period the issued capital grew from £680,141, of which £350,140 was in Ordinary, on £3,664,240, with £600,000 in Ordinary and £2,514,240 in "A" Ordinary, all of 5/- each.

The first Ordinary dividend was

NEW NIGHT SHELTER

A night shelter for Protestant women—the only one of its kind since the closing of the Women's Night Shelter in James's street a few years ago—was formally opened by the Archbishop of Dublin (Most Rev. A. W. Barton, D.D.) at 35 Lower Stephen street yesterday.
The Chairman of the Church of Ireland Temperance and Social Welfare Society, the Rev. H. G. Forde, introduced the Archbishop, who said that he felt sure that as soon as the existence of the shelter became known the means to keep it going would be forthcoming.

The "Bona Fide" Trade

The Intoxicating Liquor Bill, which was introduced in Dail Eireann yesterday by the Minister for Justice, probably will give rise to much public controversy, and powerful interests, doubtless, will make determined efforts to thwart the Minister's purpose before the bill passes through the Oireachtas. Let us say at once that we welcome it warmly as a step—if only a step—in the right way. Its object can be stated in a few words. The bill proposes to abolish the so-called bona fide traffic in intoxicating liquors on all week days, but to extend the hours during which drink can be sold on Sundays in the city areas. By far the most important feature of the new measure, however, is its proposal to abolish altogether the scandal of the bona fide trade. In his introductory speech Mr. Gerald Boland declared that the scenes in districts just outside the city of Dublin, where public-houses under existing legislation were entitled to serve drinks after the closing of licensed premises in the city, could be described as "pandemonium." This nefarious traffic has been growing up of recent years, and was at its worst when private motoring was unrestricted. In those days young men and women were accustomed after the closing of the Dublin public-houses to set out for a hostelry just outside the city area and drink there for hours on end without let or hindrance. Before the invention of motor cars, there may have been some excuse for the regulations regarding bona fide travellers; but the whole business was reduced to a farce when a party, turned out of a city public-house at ten o'clock at night, could ensconce itself comfortably in some wayside "lounge bar" within ten minutes or a quarter of an hour and consume liquor throughout the night while remaining strictly within the law. Now that there is no private motoring, this scandal is not quite so obvious, but, presumably, the war will come to an end some time, and private motor cars will appear on the Irish roads again.

We agree with Mr. Boland that now is the time to deal with this problem. Anticipating that strong pressure would be brought to bear on Dail Eireann to reject the bill, the Minister declared that, if the measure should fail in its purpose, other methods would be found to deal with the matter. We are not opponents of the licensed trade, as such. Indeed, there is something to be said for the continental system, under which intoxicating liquor can be bought at almost any hour of the day or night; but there is nothing whatever to be said for the system that prevails at present in this country. It is illogical, unintelligent, and wholly immoral. A city publican, who is under the constant surveillance of the police, and conducts his premises in an orderly and civilised fashion, is forced to close his doors at ten o'clock at night, whereas the man outside the city radius can remain open all night, in many cases almost without supervision. This system has encouraged to an alarming extent the habit of drinking in women. Publicans have been catering for their female customers by the installation of luxurious "lounge bars," which lend an air of meretricious respectability to establishments that can be described only as drinking dens; and, although this traffic has been hampered by the recent restrictions on motoring, it continues to exist on a dangerously large scale. For that reason, if for none other, we welcome Mr. Boland's Bill. We are glad that, although he has increased the total period during which drink may be consumed in the cities on Sundays, he has maintained the principle of the "split hour," which was introduced by the late Kevin O'Higgins in order, in his own words, "to shift the long sitter." The licensing laws in this country still leave much to be desired; but any reform is better than none, and we are convinced that the proposed measure is a reform. It may inflict individual hardships; but, on the principle of the greatest good of the greatest number, it is an admirable Bill, which deserves the active support of all healthy-minded citizens.

Plain Truths

This is an age, and this is a country, in which plain truths are apt to be disguised beneath a veil of words. Yesterday's meeting of the Synod of Dublin, Glendalough and Kildare, it is pleasant to report, broke with custom; there was an abundance of plain, downright speech, very little of which deserves to go to waste. Normally, in assemblies of this kind, a report is read; its adoption is moved, and speakers add their opinions. On this occasion, while the correct procedure was followed, the effect was reversed: the report, in a single sentence, summed up, in advance, most of the comments of the succeeding speakers. There was argument on behalf of family allowances, argument against the sweep stakes, argument against sexual immorality. Yet—we may be condemned as fanatics on the subject—we have a feeling that the keynote was struck in a sentence from the report of the Church's Temperance and Social Welfare Society. It read: "No substantial diminution in the evils of intemperance, betting and gambling, and impurity need be looked for so long as such wretched housing conditions prevail." Is it unreasonable to regard bad housing as the foundation of most, if not all, the social evils of this country? Well over a quarter of the people of this city of Dublin—which includes one-sixth of the population of the twenty-six counties—spend their "home life" in dwellings which fail to reach any accredited standard of decency or health. A smaller—but still a substantial—proportion is condemned to dwellings that are little above the level which would be deemed suitable for brute beasts. The Church's concern—the concern of all the bodies which constitute the Church of Christ—is with the moral and spiritual, rather than with the physical, welfare of the people; but we are among those who believe that the moral state cannot be divorced from the physical condition, and that the encouragement of decent living standards is an essential part of the Church's task. On that account we welcome this wise pronouncement from an important diocese of the Church of Ireland, as we would welcome it from any ecclesiastical body. The time has passed when any section of the Christian Church, in Ireland or elsewhere, can afford the luxury of complacency. Strong forces—the strongest in a thousand years—are mobilised against it: it must be prepared to fight—to justify its character as the Church Militant; it must prepare itself to come into the world, and to fight with the world's weapons. The Christian life can be lived at least as well in healthy as in insanitary conditions; and we fear that, unless the Church of Christ consents to align itself with the movements for slum clearance, better housing and a higher standard of living generally, it will yield ground to the philosophies—so strong to-day—which look upon these reforms as the only objects of human existence. Let the Church prove that the devil has not a monopoly of the good tunes!

"The Nation"

On this day a hundred years ago paper boys raised a riot outside a newspaper office in Trinity street, Dublin, to secure the last of an edition of 10,000 copies of a new weekly journal, the Nation. The three young men—all of them under 30—who had launched this paper from Trinity street must have known that it was not their own reputations which had won for their paper its popularity. Two of them, Thomas Osborne Davis, a native of Mallow, and John Blake Dillon, a native of Ballaghadereen, both of them barristers, had a limited fame among members of Ireland's only University. The third, Charles Gavan Duffy, a native of Monaghan, was fairly well known in Belfast, where he had been for the previous three years editor of the O'Connellite newspaper, the Vindicator, but had never cut any great figure in Dublin, where he previously had worked on the Morning Register. The reasons for the swift appeal of their paper must be sought elsewhere. Perhaps it was that some strange intuition of its content had gone abroad warning the people that three unknown young men had arisen to give Ireland a new message. They taught that nationality had a spiritual side, and that its spiritual side could be developed only by education of the people in their history, their literature, and in the sciences and arts of their times. In these times the people owe something more to the Nation and its founders than a few tributes from platform and Press. They owe it to Davis, Duffy and Dillon to ask themselves if they have taken to their hearts the message which these young men preached. Do they really believe what Davis said, that in Ireland "the Strongbownian must sit with the Ulster Scot and he whose ancestor came from Tyre or Spain must confide in and work with the Cromwellian and the Williamite?" Would they listen to a paper which told them as the Nation told them, that "they had been pampered into the belief that they were highly educated, nobly represented, successful in every science and art?" Do they, when Irishmen stain their hands with assassination, lift up their voices as Davis did to ask "is the educating, the ennobling, the sacred effort for liberty" to be "superseded by the drum of assassination and vengeance?" Would they heed a leader who told them that "Such ignorance as exists here must be got rid of, or our cry of 'Ireland for the Irish' will be a whine or a brag, and will be despised as it deserves?" If we ask ourselves these questions then we can say whether or not we really honour the memory of Davis and the Nation.

DIOCESAN SYNODS
POOR PARISHES

The well-off parishes in the Dioceses of Dublin, Glendalough and Kildare were criticised at the Synod meeting in Dublin yesterday after the Hon. Secretary to the Joint Councils (Mr. A. E. Barber) had told members that only thirty-three out of 130 parishes had supported the Poor Parishes' Fund.

Mr. Meredith Johnston urged the Archbishop to instruct parishes, and not merely suggest to them, to set aside one Sunday in the year on which a collection for this fund should be taken. Then, he said, the "stretched parishes" who would not subscribe would have to do so.

Mr. R. Jeffares proposed as a solution to the problem the transference of city clergymen to the country. He said that he could not understand why better-off clergy would not help the poor ones. He appealed to the Synod to rise to the occasion.

Mr. Barber's report showed that the Poor Parishes' Fund income for the year was £846, from which they had a credit balance of £94. This meant that their Council would not have to transfer any sum from the Central Purposes Fund to meet any deficiency. He deplored lack of support from almost 100 parishes.

Moving the adoption of the report of the Joint Councils, Mr. Barber announced that the total assets at the close of the year ended December 31, 1941, were £587,727—£300 more than those for the previous year. The Stipend Fund, which fed to a considerable extent nearly all other funds, showed a liability of £575,009. Subscriptions received from shares amounted to £21,545. From this fund £39,475 was paid in regular stipends, £234 in Good Service grants and £1,370 in allowances for Archdeacons, Deans, Canons and Rural Deans. The revenue of the Superannuation Fund for the year was £5,636. The grants for temporary assistance amounted only to £41. The assessment on parochial and other clerical incomes had to be paid in advance to the Representative Church Body. It realised £3,158, leaving a balance of £406. The balance had been added to capital, which now stood at £25,852, compared with £25,446.

Mr. Barber, pointing out that two or three of the largest defaulting parishes had experienced great difficulty in raising the amount of their assessment, suggested that some arrangement should be considered to help them permanently.

The report was adopted.

FOUNDING OF "THE NATION"
RADIO BROADCAST

The Radio always can do more for moments of history than can the stage play. The closer concentration of the historical figure against the background of his event can make us see him more clearly in his real quality; the background itself can be given an enlargement not possible within the narrower limits of the stage. The great event in the life of Thomas Davis was the founding of The Nation newspaper in 1842; the spirit that he gave it was to become part of the history of Ireland, linking with the past and reaching far into the future. All this came over to us in Harry Kennedy's play, "The Founding of The Nation," which was given from Radio Eireann last night in an excellent production by Noel Hartnett. Here, indeed, was a fine subject, ably treated, in one of the most successful, because most convincing and complete, reproductions of a period that the Station has given us.

At first the slackness of the days in which Davis, with his colleagues, Charles Gavan Duffy and John Blake Dillon, struck out with great courage and enthusiasm to make a change. Davis, roaming back in his mind to 1798 for inspiration to begin; the founding of the paper which was destined to change the course of Irish history; its sudden and brilliant success; its teaching, through the devoted work of Davis, in prose and verse, raising up a new spirit in every corner of the land. All this, in swift scenes, without a word or a moment wasted, with humour, too, where it best fitted, and with a warm sense of what goes to the making of a newspaper, made "The Founding of The Nation" a memorable production. Its clear characterisation, in a firm and well-constructed framework, gave its players all that they needed to give of their best in every scene, and, although it had a perfect ending, one was sorry that it had to end, even after forty-five minutes.

ALLOTMENTS IN 1943

The planning of allotment schemes for 1943 is under way. An increase of more than 30,000 in the number of plotholders since 1939 is reported by the Department of Agriculture, which reminds unemployed persons that land for allotments can be made available in urban areas at a nominal rent, and that seeds, manures (if available), spraying materials, and the use of implements are provided free.

There should be no need, states the Department, to stress the importance of the food problem. Increased production is vital, and prospective plotholders are urged to get in touch at once with town clerks and allotment associations.
